Dedication

We sigh to dedicate these efforts to Mrs. Amelia Thiede, North Scott Junior Senior counselor. For the past nine years, Mrs. Thiede has directed her energy to helping students in the academic and social areas of school life. Her genuine interest in each individual student is reflected in her willingness to advise, direct or simply listen. Although this is Mrs. Thiede's last year as counselor at North Scott, her efforts have influenced many students and those of us with whom she has worked will remember her ready smile and gentle direction.

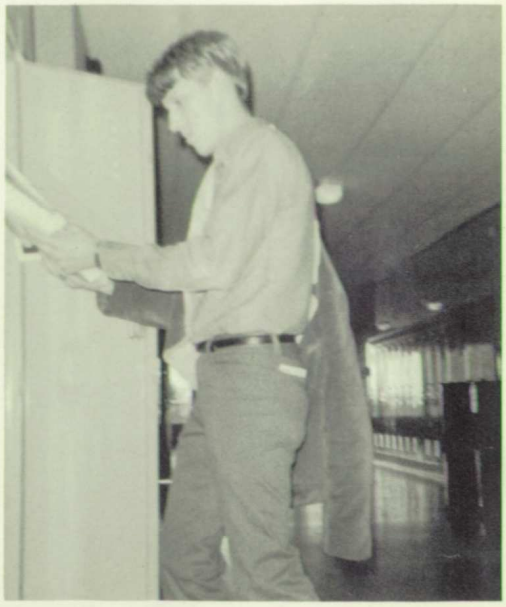
Early morning arrivals disembark as bus fleet arrives.

The proverbial promenade assumes new dimensions as students walk the halls before the first bell.

Promenade dropouts converse near an open locker.

And, at 8:41, there is always one "For Whom the Bell Tolls."



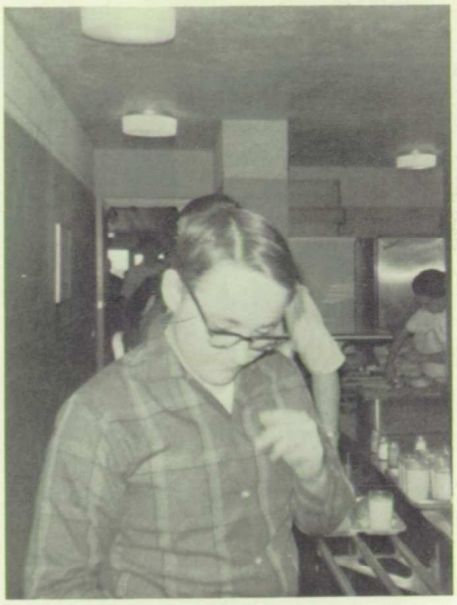
Practical experiences with a varity of machines is one of the highlights of the North Scott Business Department.

Art students, such as Lee Kranz, are encouraged to display their art works for the public.

Two sophomore girls utilize the facilities of the N. S. library as they begin work on a English term paper.

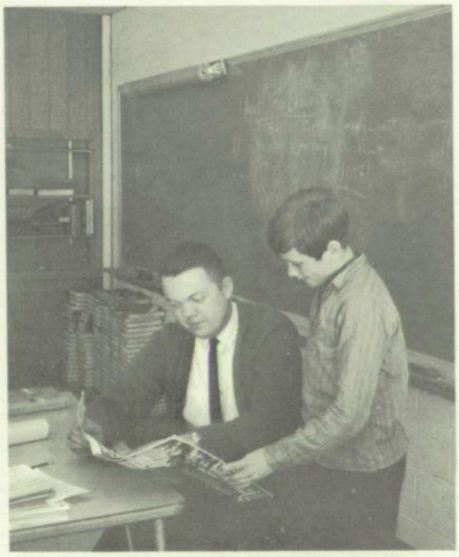
Kathy Burroughs and Ed Rhodes pause during art class to admire some completed projects.

"Hey Leon, -its not senior privilege day yet. Get to the back of the line!"



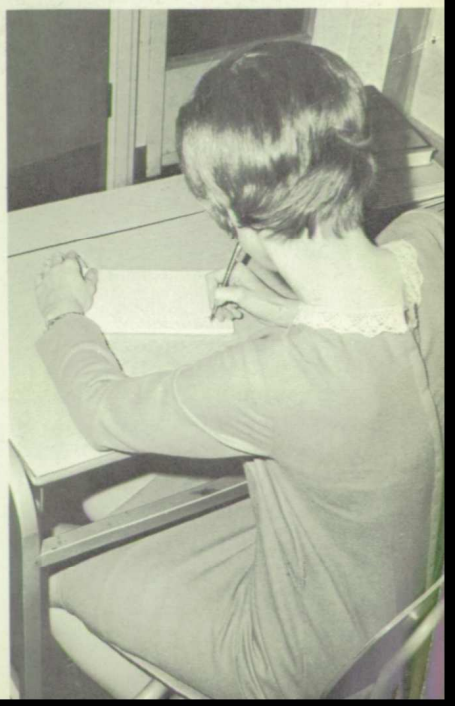
"What did I forget?" wonders Tim Mardis as he files through the lunch line during noon hour.

Within twenty-two minutes, students review morning classes, eat lunch, and gather enough courage to face afternoon classes.



A junior high student receives help from Mr. Thompson as the afternoon classes begin.

Eileen Peekenschneider concentrates on the 'foreign language' of the secretaries, shorthand.



Allen Weise realizes concentration is a necessity as he works in shop class.

"I did not goof," mutters Bev Grell as she and Harold Paustian work together during a chemistry lab.

Senior Mike McDaniels receives a Study Hall 'Hero medal from Mr. Benjamin after being in seventh period study hall for four years. . . under Mr. Benjamin.

Armed with books, students leave N. S. halls as classes are ended for another day.

CLASSES

Dorothy Kullig pauses at her locker between classes. School in Germany last for only a half of a day for Dorothy, and at first, she found it difficult to adjust to a full day of classes.

Dorothy Kullig, North Scott foreign exchange student for 1966-67, hailed from Buxtehude, Germany. Initially Dorothy found the schools in the two countries to be very different but eventually she began to notice a number of similarities.

During the year, Dorothy lived with the Walter Schneckloths, her American family. She studied the usual courses for a high school senior at North Scott and also worked part time at the Scott County Library in Eldridge, Iowa.

Included in her studies were English IV (College Prep.), Government, Chemistry, Speech, Drivers Education, Communism and Physical Education.

Before returning to Germany during the summer, Dorothy visited Ronna Robertson in Battle Creek Michigan. Ronna had lived with the Kullig family in Germany as a foreign exchange student during the summer of 1966.

Along with carrying a full load, Dorothy worked part time at the Scott County Library in Eldridge.

The Schnekloth's became Dorothee Kullig's American family for the 66-67 school year. As they helped Dorothee learn of American life, they became better acquainted with German life and customs.

Dorothee enjoyed her work at the Scott County Library for it gave her a chance to improve her school work and to meet and speak with many people.

Transferring experience gained at the Scott County Library, Dorothee utilizes the reference material available in the North Scott library.

Mrs. Betty Levson gives Dorothee some extra help with her speech project. Although she had difficulty with the language at first, Dorothee improved rapidly.

Seniors Retain Vital Memories of N.S. '67

Leaving the school are senior class officers Pres. Gary Rochau; Vice-Pres. Julie Beert; and Sec. - Treas. Jack Davis.

Prom, graduation, senior week, senior privileges, the class picnic---these are the memories which will stay with the members of the class of '67 for a long time. The year, which seemed to pass so slowly, was suddenly over. Now there are memories of individual accomplishments: Barb Wulf reigning at the Homecoming celebrations; Jack Davis chosen as Bachelor Capture King; and Mary Lou Wuestenberg receiving the citizenship award. With the passing succeeding years, the class of '67 will remain ever vital and meaningful in the memories of its graduates.

Sandy Hamann, Liz Keller, and Barb Drumm combine fun and work as they study for a test on a "Tale of Two Cities" in their sports clothes during Casual Day.

Juniors Choose New Class Ring

The Juniors made this an unusual year by choosing a different style of class ring. The round ring really made the Juniors proud. They found this year a working year with the responsibility of sponsoring a prom for which they chose the theme "An Evening in Paris."

Class officers and other hard working students discuss decorations for the Junior-Senior Prom. Included in the decorations were a French cafe and the Eiffel Tower made for the May 13th Prom.

Sophomores Plan Busy Year

These sophomore class officers collect dues before school. The money will be used to help finance the Jr. -Sr. Prom next year. They are: Pres. Janet Herman, Treas. Mary Elmegreen, Vice-Pres. Pat Engle, and Sec. Jackie Blanche.

To help raise money for the '67-68 Prom, the sophomores sponsored a roller skating party in May. They sold tickets to the skating party during both lunch hours and outside of school. The group also began planning projects for the 67-68 school year to insure the success of their Junior-Senior prom.

This is one of the many sophomores working on their English II term paper. The subjects for the papers ranged from teen problems to controversial world affairs.

Freshman class officers formed an active and friendly triumvirate for the first year of high school. The officers were Pres. O. D. Pischke; Sec. -Treas. P. Kroeger and Vice-Pres. D. Hansen.

Freshmen Are Introduced to High School Life

The freshman class altered their status this year as they officially entered high school. Although familiar with the building, members of the freshman class discovered many differences between junior and senior high. Before the end of the year, however, they had become an integral part of school life at North Scott.

A brief rest during the day is enjoyed by a group of freshmen during the noon hour. The N. S. 's are relaxing on the front lawn of the school.

Chatting before classes in the morning are J. O' Boyle, D. Pischke, J. McCubbin, N. Marti.

Office Staff Important at North Scott

BETTY STAMER, R.N.
School Nurse

The students, teachers, and administration depend upon the efficiency of the office staff. Requirements of working in an office are many and vary from answering the telephone to writing admit slips. Some of the other services provided by the cheerful office staff are typing letters, running errands, and collecting fees.

Another important area in the office work is the handling of the daily attendance sheets which are taken care of by Mrs. Stamer. Eye examinations and TB tests are a few of the other activities which Mrs. Stamer performs.

The success of the general school operation depends on the efficiency of the office staff. Combining their individual jobs of filing, typing, recording, the members of the North Scott staff are characterized by their efficiency and cheerfulness.

ACADEMICS

Students Study Origin

The Social Studies program introduces students to varied areas of history. The high school subjects include the basic American World History and American Government as well as such classes as Geography and Communism.

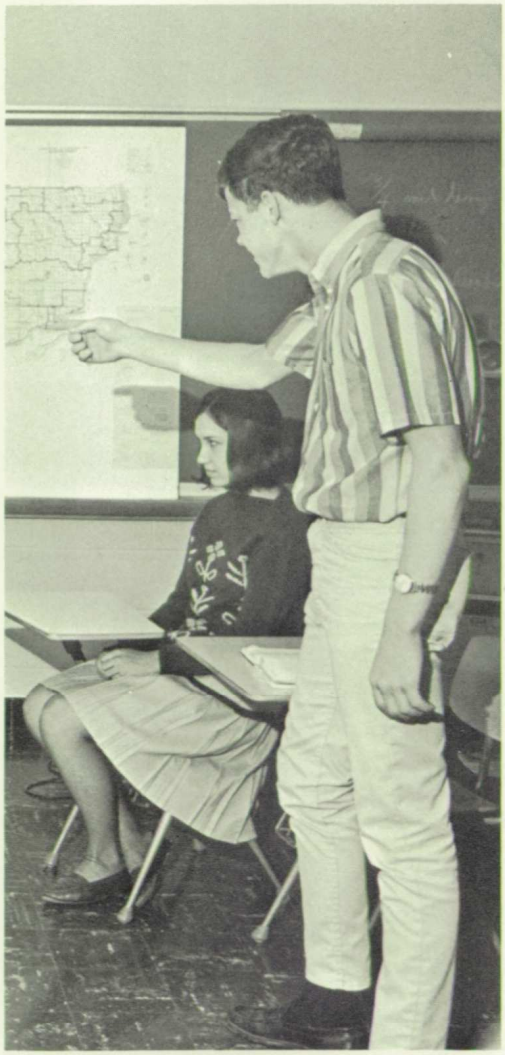
Suggesting a possible answer to a students question rather than just answering it enables the student to use his or her own initiative.

In order to better understand courtroom procedures, members of the American Problems class presented mock trials. The outline of the facts of the trial was given to students who were then assigned courtroom roles such as plaintiff, judge or defendent.

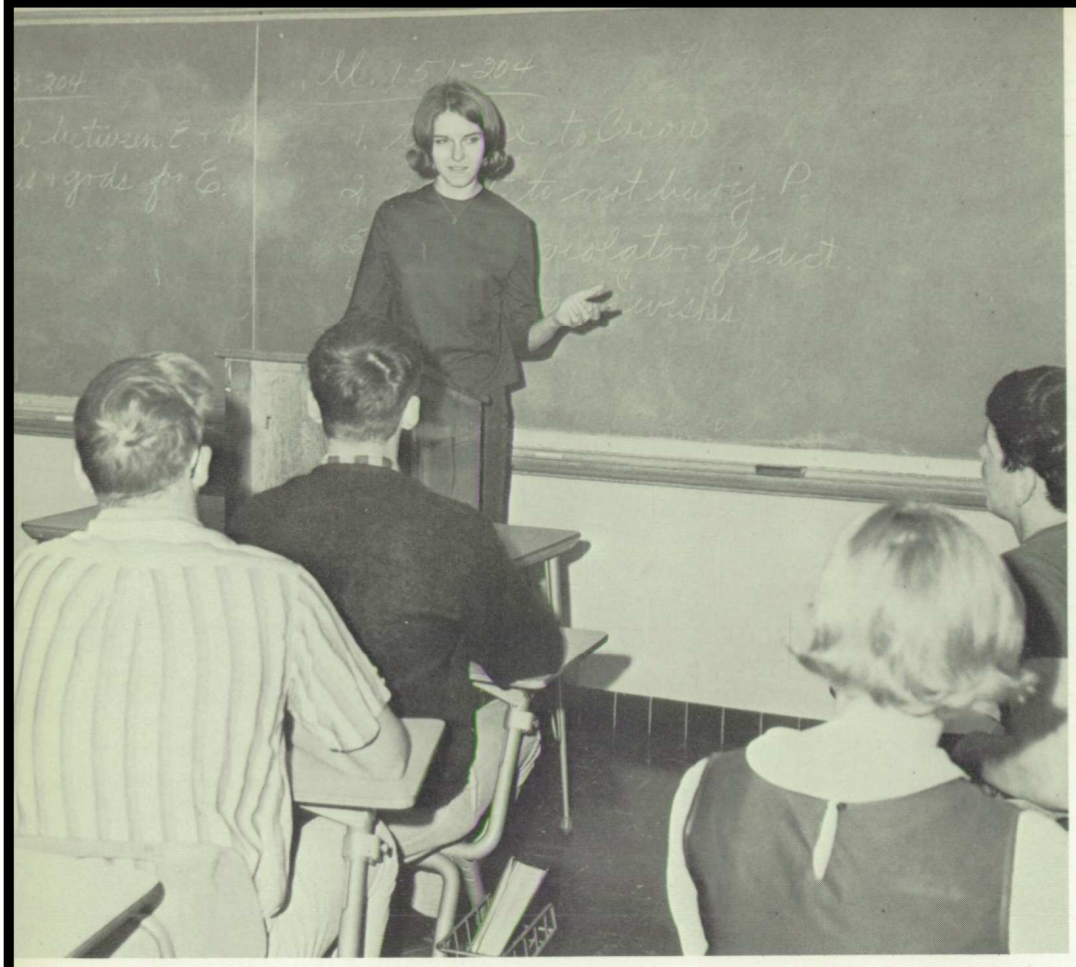
Development of Governments

During the course of studies, the students learn of different types of government, their origin and development. Special emphasis is placed upon the checks and balances within our own government and the function of each of the three areas of governmental activity.

The ability to visualize the location of countries discussed in class is an important asset in learning history. Mr. Lake uses maps during lectures to aid students in doing this.



Mr. Lake gives Ron Green help in using information found in a textbook for a study project in class.



Presenting the various types of speeches before the class provides opportunity for the student to acquire the poise and self-confidence that mark a polished speaker.

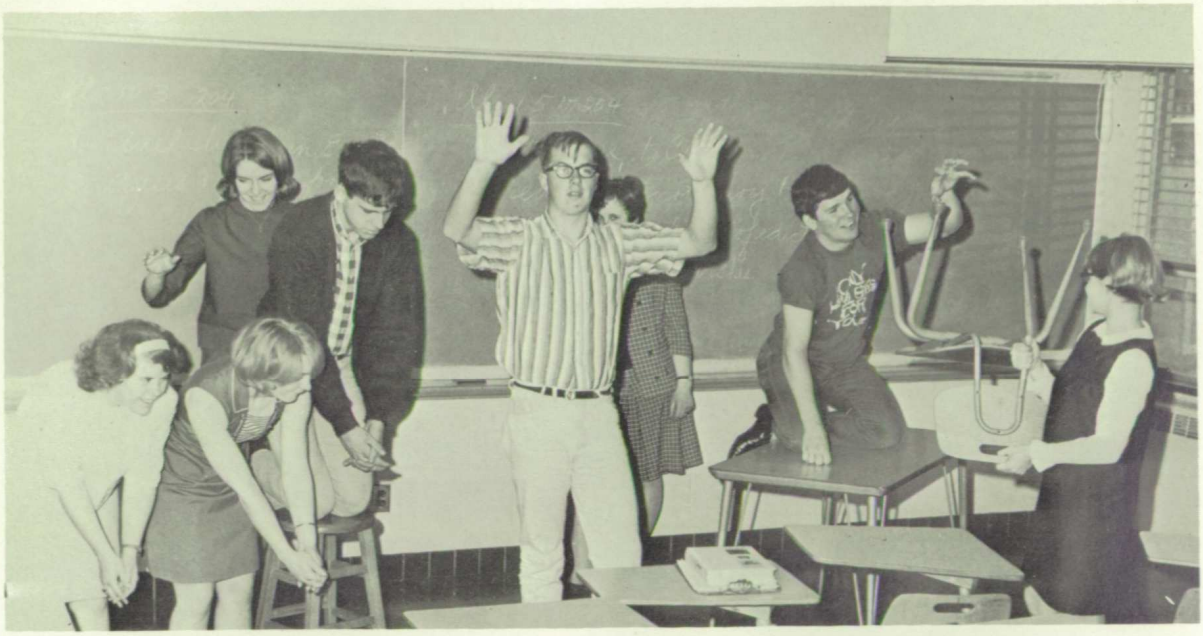
Conducting a panel discussion on the personal reactions of a book just studied is one of the many projects in communication stressed by General English IV.

Freshmen students struggling to master the techniques of theme writing receive individual assistance from their instructors.

Experience in working with variety of expressive media including sculpture, mosaics, watercolor, oil and lettering is offered to art students.

Humanities Encourage Student Initiative and Appreciation

English, Speech, Art, and Language courses foster not only an appreciation of the universal aspects of life but also provide the student an opportunity to communicate effectively his creative ideas and practical observations.

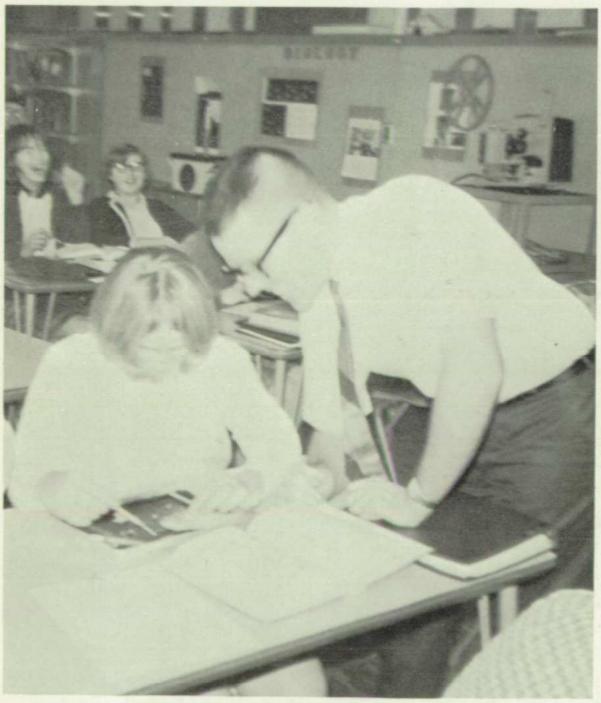


Because voice is only a part of total effective communication, pantomime assignments emphasize the importance of gesture and facial expression as a part of successful speaking.

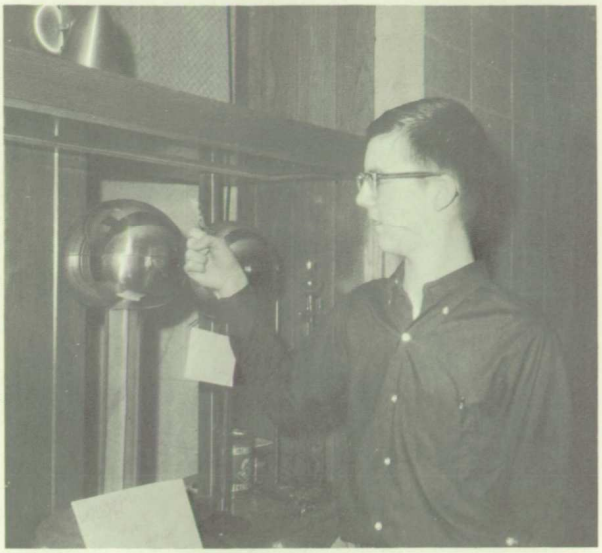
A. Keppy, J. Beert and B. Wulf experiment with the Wimshurst electro-static generator during a physic lab session.

Science Courses Utilize Various Techniques

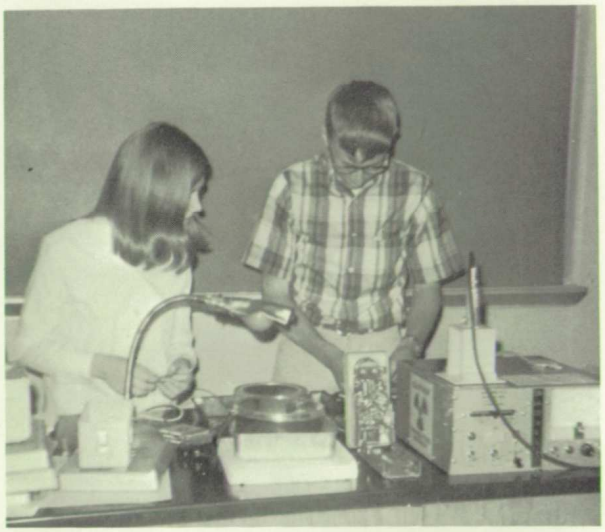
Mr. Fox show K. C. Levson how to reach the brain of a frog. Dissecting a frog is just one of the many experiences obtained in Biology class.



The science program at North Scott begins with General Science and concludes with Bio-chemistry or Advanced Biology. If a student wishes to take a science course, he may expect the year to include class lectures, lab work and guest lecturers.



During the four minutes between classes, Allan Shaw finds time to stop at the "shocking machine," which jolted many students during the second semester.



Harold Paustian and Bev Grell utilize the modern equipment in the Chemistry Lab.

Gary Rochau and Mike McDaniel work with the "mini-DAC-1010." This computer teaches the fundamentals of binary combinations.

Complex World Motivates Math Students

With this ever-changing world, students at North Scott feel the importance of taking the various math courses offered. The courses vary from General Math to Trigonometry.

Algebra teaches the fundamentals of extensive math education, whereas, geometry is a science of reasoning.

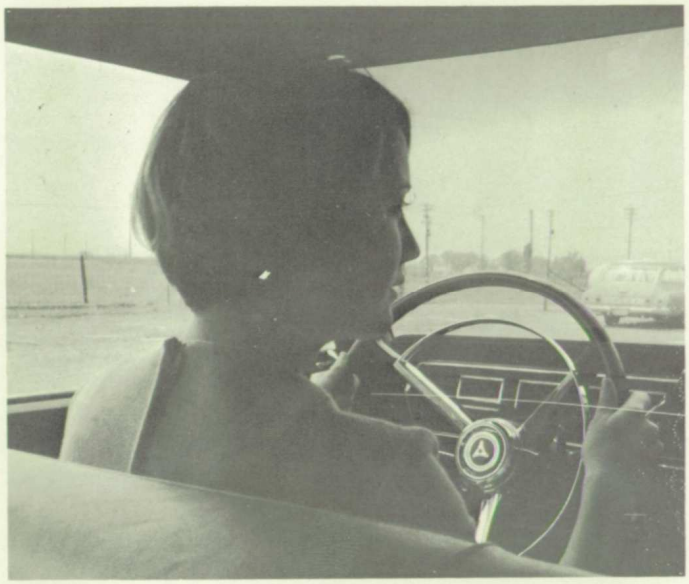
Senior math consists of trigonometry, college algebra, and analytic geometry. Students who wish to take this course must have completed two years of algebra and one year of geometry.

Mr. Dalton uses geometric forms to help students understand the principles of geometry.

Students Master Driving Methods

Driver's Education is a required subject at North Scott. Along with introducing students to the general laws governing good driving, the program enables the students to gain practical experience behind the wheel. The teachers in this program are Mr. Richard Snyder and Mr. Wayne Higby.

Logan Meise receives final instructions grom Mr. R. Snyder before driving on Interstate 80.



By the end of the session, students have gained confidence in their driving ability. Barb Goetz wheels confidently into a parking place as she finishes her final lesson.

Mr. Snyder gives a few final suggestions to Barb so she will continue to improve her driving ability and alertness.

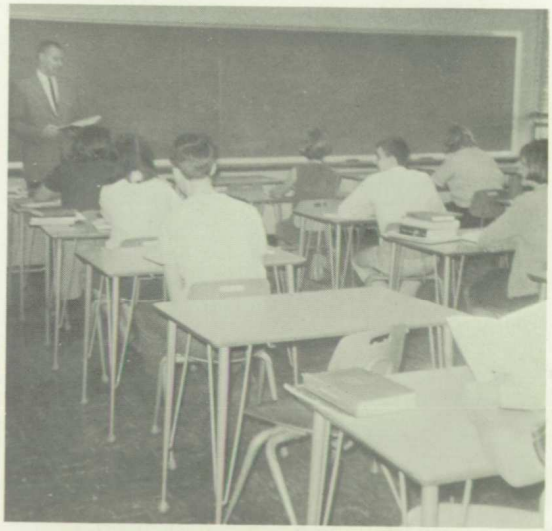
Classes Provide

Typing letters, invoices, and other jobs are all part of secretarial practice. Sue Lau works on a letter outside of class.

Students at North Scott have ample opportunities to learn about current business, laws, and secretarial jobs by working in the workshop or enrolling in one of the many secretarial classes offered.



Mr. Ryan teaches his general business students the basic premises of all phases of business.

Bookkeeping students put in extra time to balance their books.

Preparing for the class banquet, Sheryl Claeys and Margaret Auliff carefully check the progress of their bread specialities.

Practical Experience

Home Ec. I & II classes gain insight into the art of homemaking by practical applications of what they learn. This year these classes had opportunities to plan, prepare and serve class meals as well as entertain formally by sponsoring a teachers luncheon and a Mothers Tea. Also, in the areas of homemaking, the sewing classes had opportunity to create a variety of clothing products to gain experience in the art of sewing.

Darlene Hoos serves coffee to Mrs. Kramer and Mrs. Kohler at the annual Teachers' Tea. Cakes "made from scratch" are proudly produced for the occasion.

Mr. Ed Fisher and Mr. William Banks eagerly sample the products of the Home Ec. class's cooking.

Patience and industry are among the requirements for a good seamstress as the members of sewing class realize while mastering the art of dressmaking.

Shop Courses Provide

Vocational Agriculture and Industrial Arts are both geared to give students practical experience in working with the various machines found in farming and industry. The projects undertaken during the year give the students opportunity to apply the general principles they have been learning. These projects also enable the students to "learn by doing" so as to discover what they do not know by the mistakes they make.

Allen Goettsch and Harold Badrum work with power machines in metals.

Steve King received an award in the marketing contest in Vo-Ag at the annual F. F. A. Banquet. Mr. Marsh, Vocational Agriculture instructor, is on the right.

Members of the Vo-Ag class built up a tractor to be entered in the tractor pulling contest at the Mississippi Valley Fair.

Practical Experience

Along with gaining experience in planning projects and using a variety of machines, students are also introduced to safety techniques and equipment. Safety measures are used consistently during the class.

As one of their special Vo-Ag class projects Rick Shumaker, Dave Meyer, and Daryll Claussen construct a sheep feeder.

"Look out." Here comes the ball." And the sixth period baseball game is on its way.

Morey Wills never had it so good.

Phys. Ed. Courses Stress

The physical education department offers classes to all students who are not participating in a particular competitive sport. When weather permits, classes for both boys and girls are held on the athletic field.

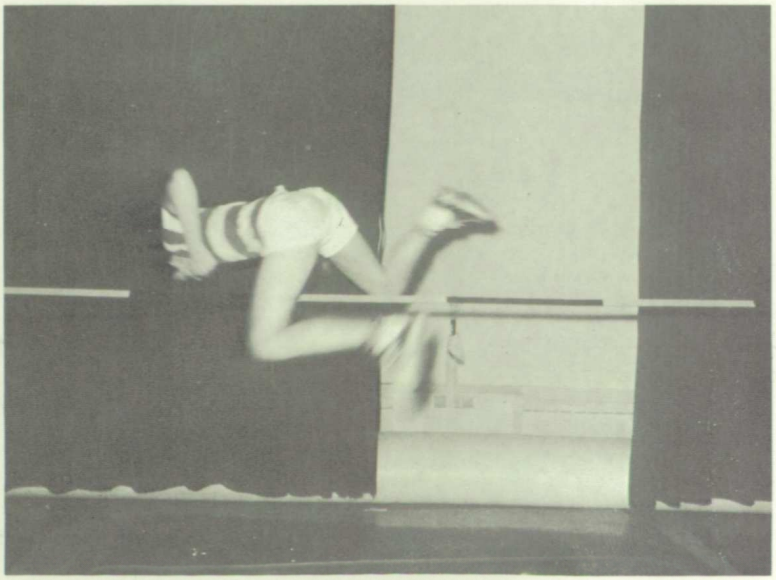
The batting line-up has a quick conference with Miss Kluver as they try to even up the score.

One principle which is learned in gym class is "What goes up must come down."

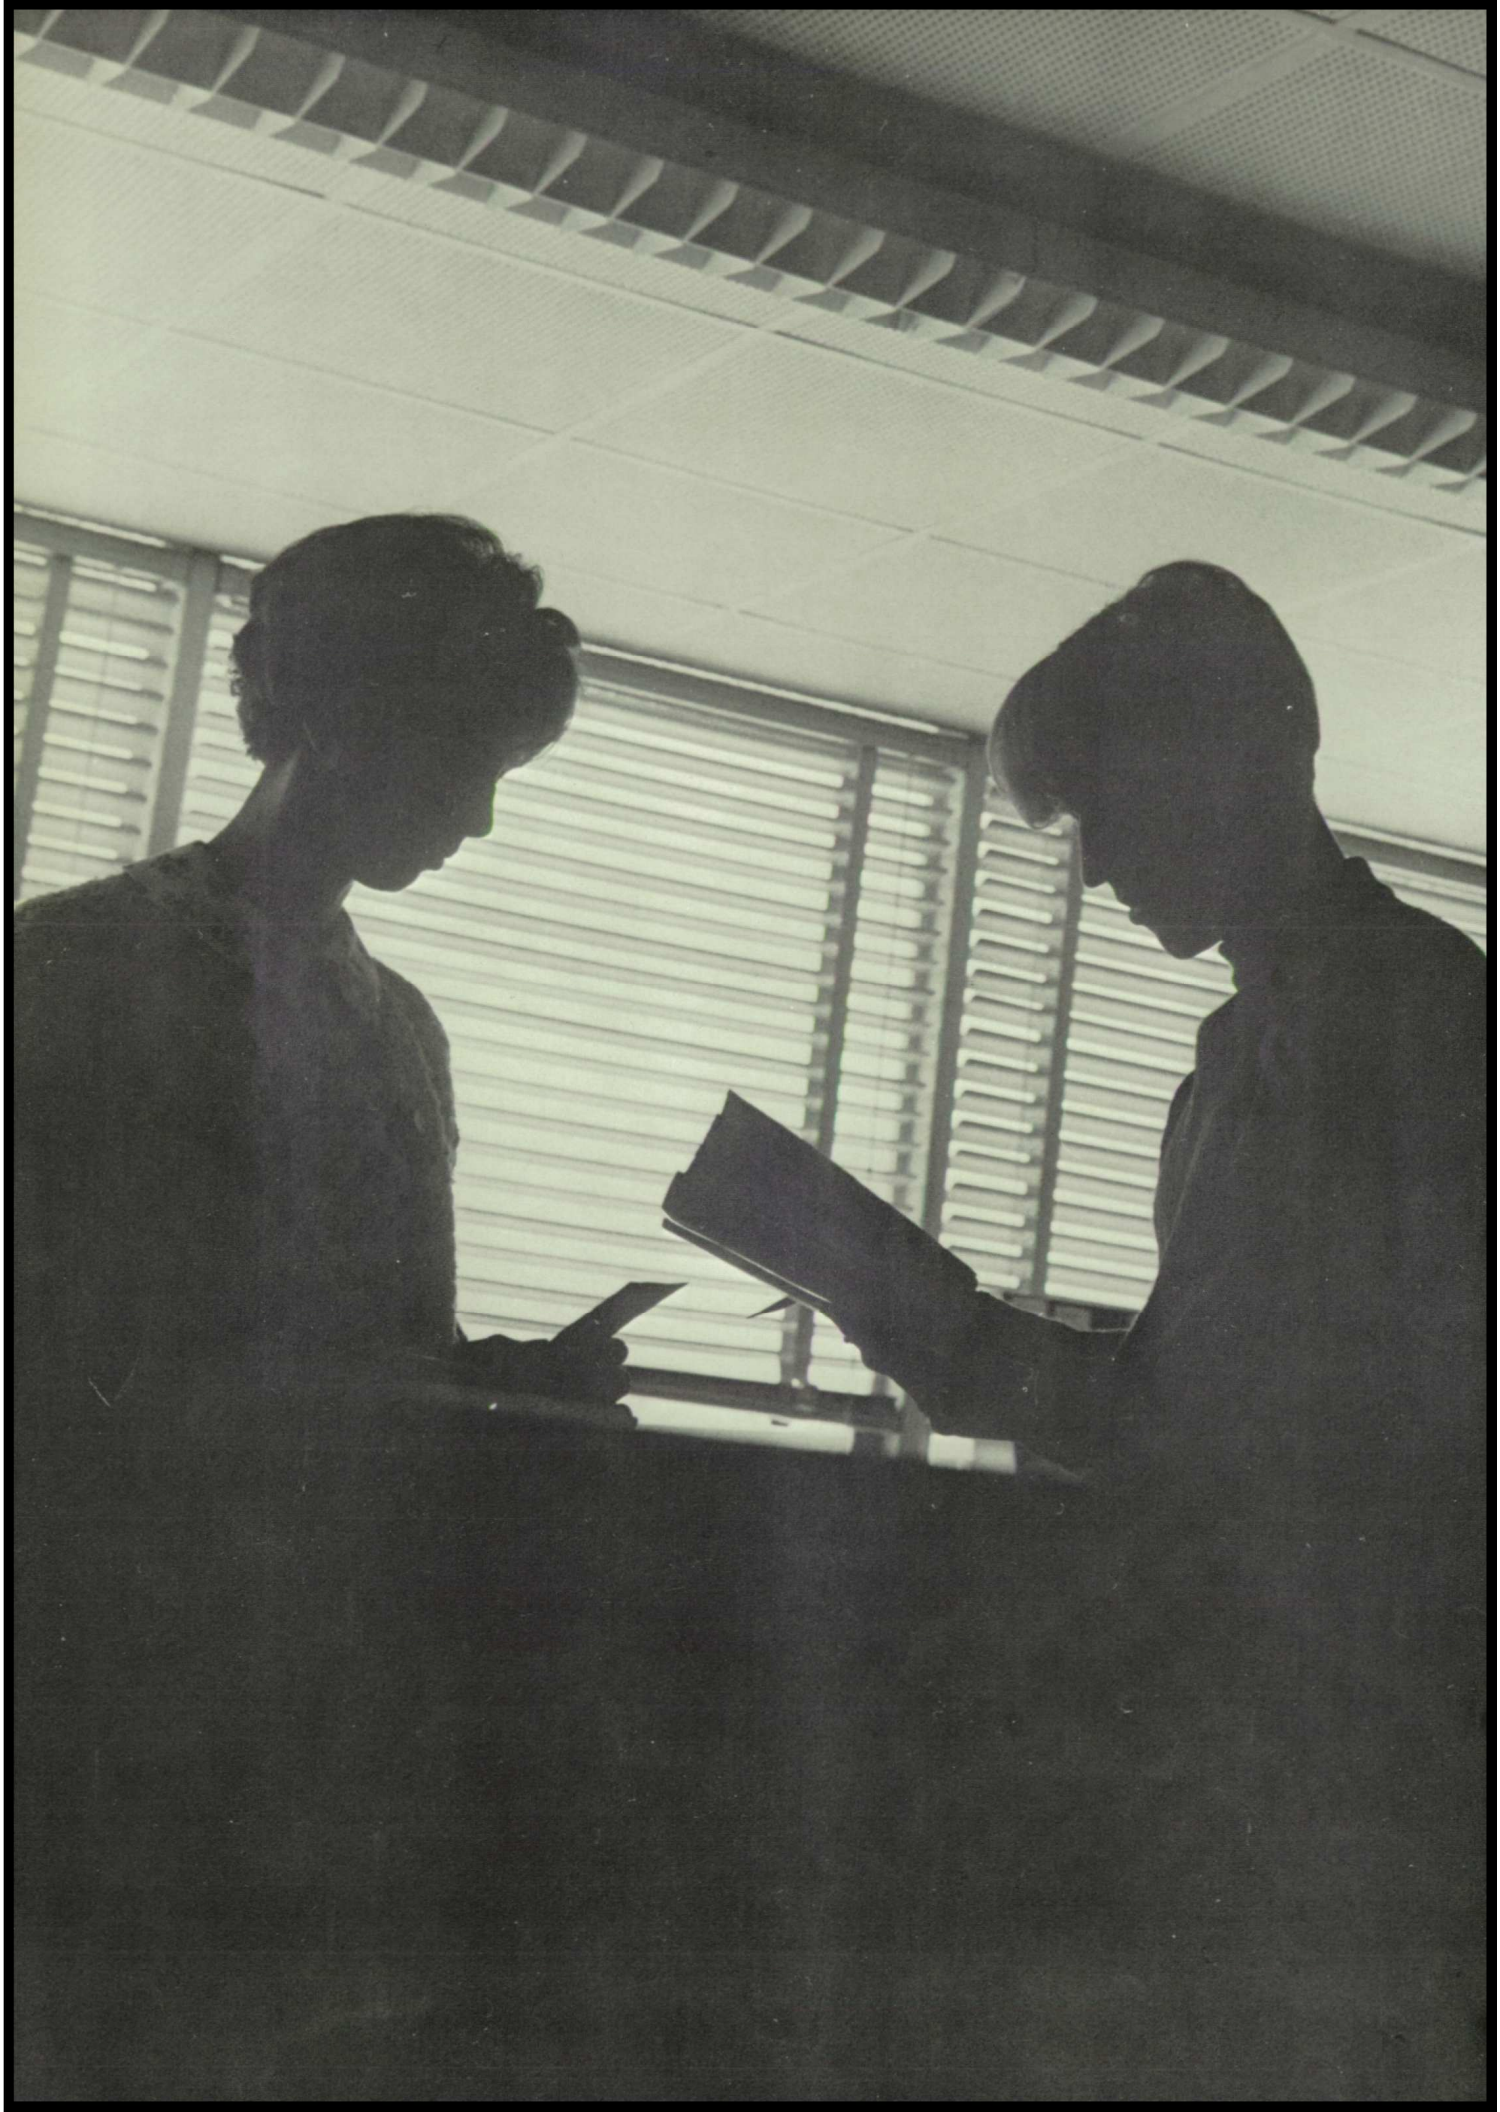
"I know where I'm going," says a North Scotter as he climbs the rope during gym class.

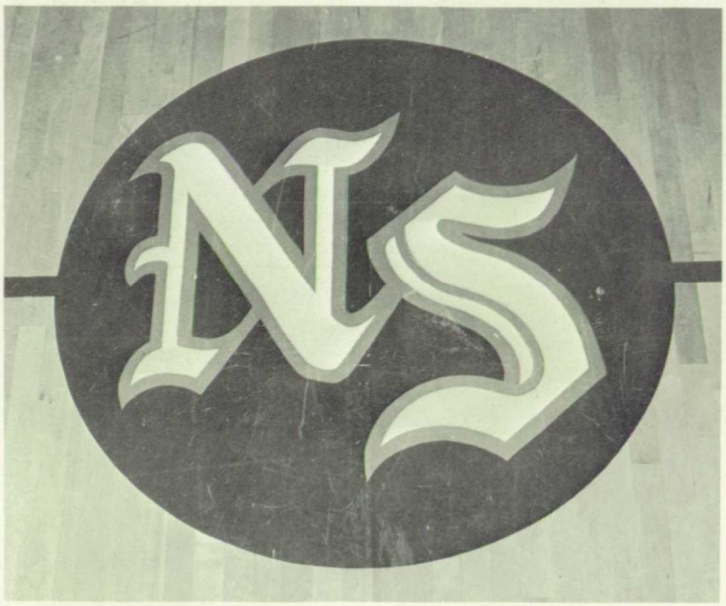
"Learn by Doing"

During the winter months the boys and girls Phys. Ed. classes share the gym and equipment. Besides learning about regular sports, such as basketball, members of the physical education classes are introduced to such things as archery, soccer and badminton.



Students are able to practice Track even during the winter months by using the mats and equipment in the gym.





ACTIVITIES

John Pischke, Marilyn Schneckloth, and Barb Wulf decorated the annual Christmas tree in the lobby.

This year the student council sponsored North Scott's second foreign exchange student, Dorothy Kullig.

The annual magazine sale and the selling of booster buttons were two sources of money which were used to buy the robe used in the crowning of the homecoming queen.

The council decorated a huge tree at Christmas, which was placed in the lobby. The Student Council purchased interesting pictures which were displayed throughout the school. Also, the council presented an entertainment program at the County Home.

Council members represented North Scott at various student council conferences and the Illowa Student Council Convention.

The student council also sponsored several new rules for better school co-operation.

Drama Students Create

One of the happy climaxes of Emily Webb's (Sharon Marten) short life was the day she married the boy next door, George Gibbs (Jay Darland).

Thirty-six senior high students recreated Thornton Wilder's "Our Town" for an appreciative audience Nov. 11 and 12. Employing local terms, the cast presented the famous play depicting the cycle of human life--birth, marriage, and death. The play reached a dramatical climax when the dead Emily (Webb) Gibbs visited the living only to discover the fact that few living people are truly aware of their existence or of those around them.

Assembled on the stage, the Our Town cast is a happy and impressive group.

'Our Town'

Weary and full of disillusionment, Emily returns to the dead after a visit to the living.

F.H.A.-F.F.A. Sponsor "The Night before Christmas"

The F.F.A. and F.H.A. members and their advisors prepared for the annual Christmas Ball by transforming the gym to the theme of "The Night Before Christmas." A fireplace with stockings and a gaily decorated christmas tree helped create a yuletide atmosphere.

Just before the coronation of the new king and queen, the candidates were presented. The royal candidates were M. Baetke, L. Doyle, S. Kramer, D. Marten, M. Wuestenberg, L. Wulf, B. Oetzmann, D. Meyer, C. Horstmann, and E. Knapper.

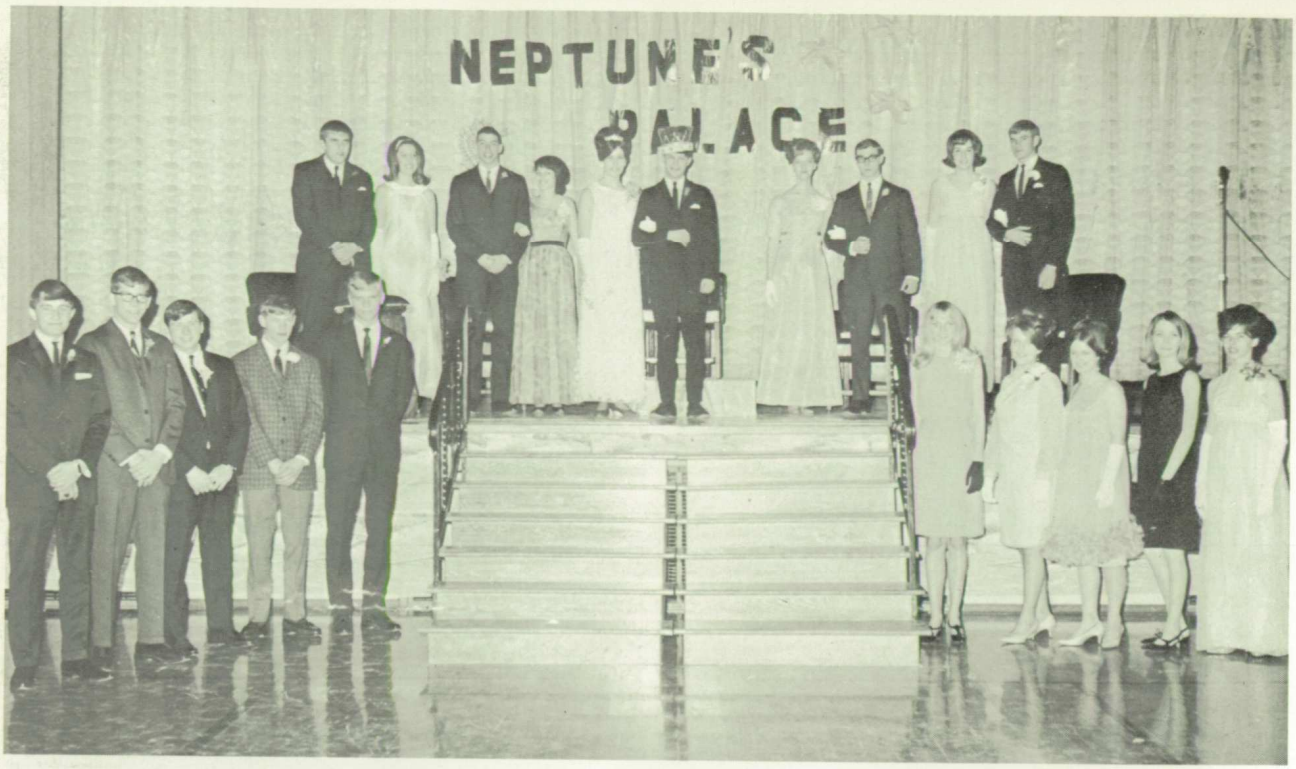
Reigns at Capture



King Jack, Queen Barb and their royal court pose after the coronation.

Turn about manners are illustrated as Bonnie Oetzmann opens the door for her date, Merlyn Marten.

Neptune's Palace was brought to the gymnasium by the Junior-Senior girls for the annual girl-ask-boy dance, the Bachelor's Capture. Fishnet, deep sea animals, a treasure chest, and mermaid formed the underwater fantasy land. Rusty anchors and a peer for the band enhanced the sea palace.

Jack Davis reigned as the king of the palace, and Gary Bergert, Larry Goettsch, John Pischke, and Leon Wulf composed his court. Selected as runners-up by the senior class were Jim Henzen, Dale Keppy, Ed Knapper, Loren McFate, and Dave Meyer.

Festivities resume with a court dance.

Being served by the freshmen waiters and waitresses adds to the regal atmosphere.

Spring Play Provides Delightful

Count Boris Kolenkhov (Gary Rochau) and Countess Olga Katrina (Donnabell Doyle) brought Russian royalty and "splendor" to the household.

Displaying her "talent" as a ballet dancer, Essie (Ann Bailey) performs a number of ballet steps for grandpa (Merlyn Martin). Ed (Lynn Howard) accompanies her on the xylophone.

Mrs. Sycamore (Sharon Martin) greets Mr. and Mrs. Kirby (LeRoy Doyle and Mary Lillis) and their son, Tony (Ed Schneckloth).

Entertainment

A delightful comedy, "You Can't Take It With You" by Kaufman and Hart, greeted the audience attending this year's Spring Play at North Scott. The plot centered around a family who lived as they pleased, irregardless of economics, taxation, and social mores. The family, headed by grandpa, encountered many social problems but still insisted on living in their relaxed and self satisfying world.

Representing two different worlds, Alice (K.C. 4 Levsen) and Tony Kirby (Ed Schneckloth) pause for a tender moment before the clash between the two families.

Guns drawn, the G-Men are about to arrest Ed for printing subversive writings.

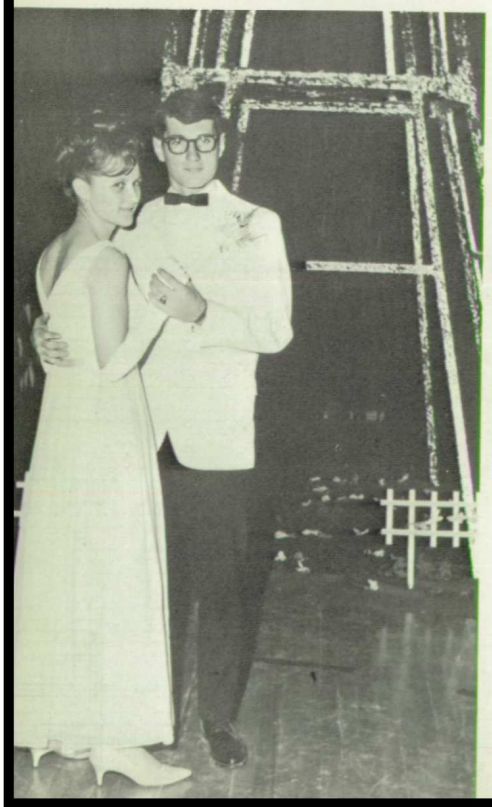
Juniors Transform Gym Into Gay Paree

"Evening in Paris" was the theme for this year's Junior-Senior Prom. The decorations included sidewalk cafe's, fountains and the Eiffel Tower. Students entered the dancefloor through the Arc of Triumph. The Carrol Baker Band provided music for the evening.

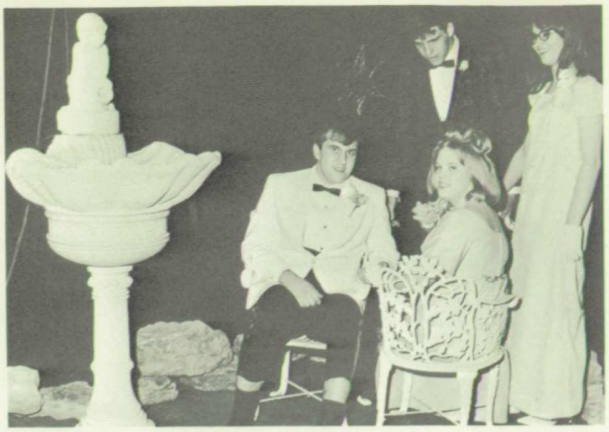
Striding through the archway, Larry Goettsch and his date hurry to the dance floor.

Two couples pause in the middle of a dance for a brief conversation.

Loren Snyder and Donna Scott take advantage of the music.



Glen Helble and Donna McLaughlin rest for a moment during the Junior-Senior Prom.



Resting at an "out of the way" fountain Bev Baustian and Gary Bergert chat with Jay Darland and Dianne Kraft.

Cafe Tables sporting soft drinks in ice buckets are enjoyed by North Scott couple, Mark Levsen and Pat Gast.

Viewed through the archway, "Gay Paree" seems complete with sidewalk cafes, fountains, the Eiffel Tower, and romantic couples.

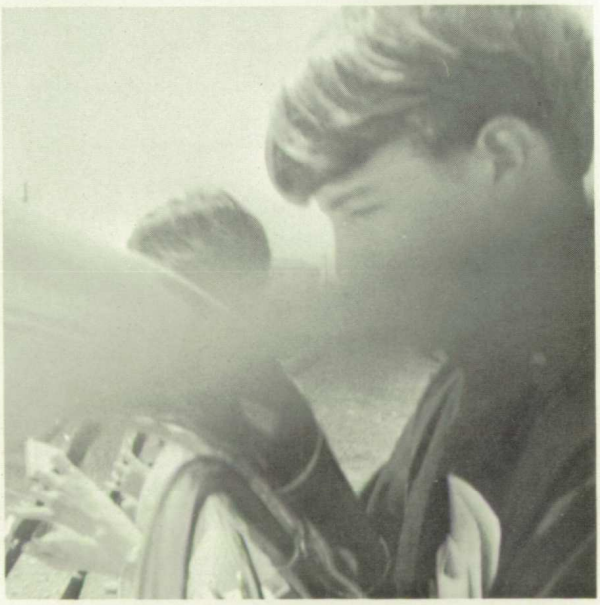
Mr. R. Grieves, Band Director, calls the North Scott Marching Band to attention as spring practice begins.

Marching Band Performs for Local, School Events

The North Scott Marching Band begins practice in the Spring months and continues working during the summer. The Band performs in local events as well as presenting half-time shows at every home football game. A new Band Director, Mr. Richard Grieves, replaced Mr. Arthur Schultz during the Spring Quarter.

A little rusty from the long winter, the Band begins to march and soon swings into the precise performance which marked their appearances during the fall.



Band members must concentrate on their music as well as the routines which they perform.

Gary Rochau takes a deep breath as he waits for Mr. Grieves to give the signal to begin playing.

Because of the rain, the band was unable to march on Memorial Day. However, they participated in services at the N. S. Gym. After the ceremony the band remained at attention until the crowd had dispersed.

Young Republicans Support Candidates, Discuss Platform

The political scene at North Scott this year resembled a totalitarian system. While the Young Republicans succeeded in organizing and actively implementing their club the young Democrats failed in their attempt to establish a club.

During the year the Young Republican members not only attended pre-election meetings to work for specific local candidates but also learned about the origin and development of the current Republican Party platform from Mr. Charles Wittenmeyer, a visiting speaker.

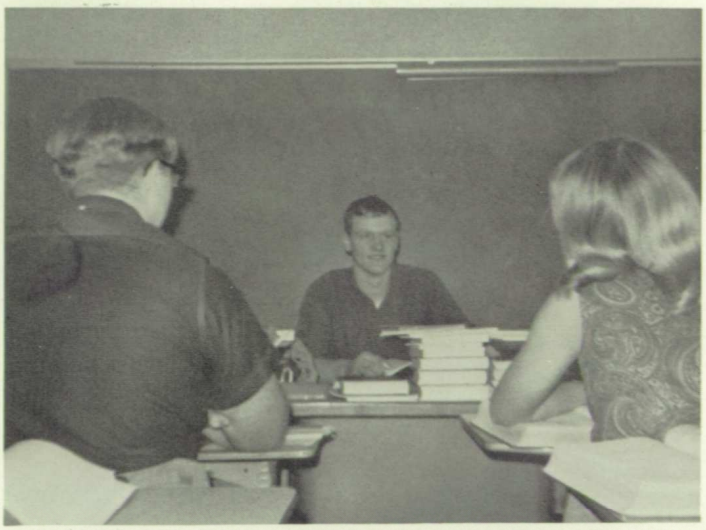
F.T.A. members occasionally act as substitute teachers when a faculty member must leave for a period or a substitute is unavailable for an ill faculty member.



The Future Teachers were kept busy by interesting speakers such as Mr. Thompson, special education teacher at Taylor School, Davenport, and Margo Frye, who spoke on her tour of duty in the peace corps. Other highlights of the year were the State F. T. A. Convention and the annual teachers tea, which is sponsored by the Future Teachers Club. The 1966-67 F.T.A. officers are: Pres., M. Marten; V. F.H.A. Adorns Inner Court with Flowers

The Future Homemakers of America have engaged in numerous activities this year. They held their annual slumber party in the North Scott gym. During F.H.A. Week they distributed roses to all of the teachers, cleaned the trophy case and the court. Last fall they planted flowers which adorned the inner court during the spring months.

Students Create

Pausing mid-court during an afternoon rehearsal, North Scott sewing students J. Schulz, S. Marten, C. Scherer, L. McVey, K. C. Levson, J. Rechum and C. Horsman model their seasonal creations.

Centering their script, decorations and scenery around the theme "Garden of Fashion", F.H.A. members presented their annual style show during May.

Clothes from every season were presented during the show. The outfits, made by the sewing students, ranged from informal short outfits to full length formals. Students also outfitted a number of children who modeled their clothing in the show.

Staff Learns Techniques of Newspaper Production

The members of the Journalism class are primarily concerned with the production of the Lance. During the year, the members of the class developed their talents in writing, proofreading and creative layout. Organization and cooperation were two factors required for producing a good paper.

After the articles have been sent to the printers, staff members await the return of copy so they may proofread and complete layout for the Lance.

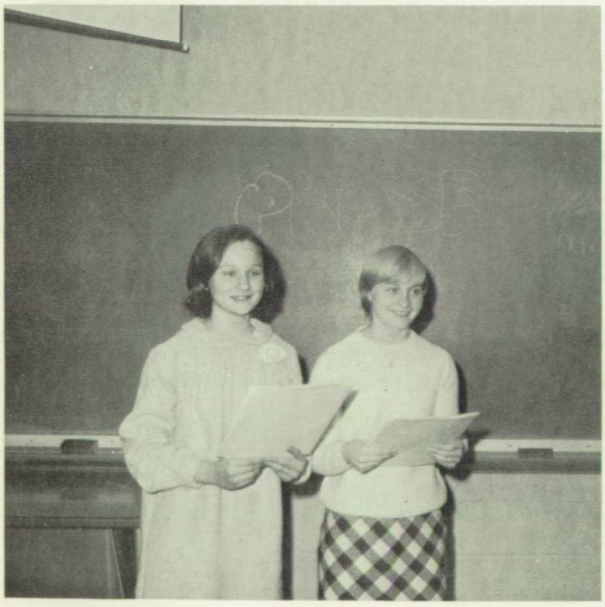
Speech Students Organize Drama Club



Judy Claussen and Lorene Kuhl were winners in the speech invitational sponsored by Sadons.

The Speech and Drama Organization of North Scott was organized this year under the direction of Mrs. Betty Levsen, speech and drama coach. Better known as Sadons, the group encourages speech students to direct the experience obtained in class toward outside competitive activities such as speech contests.

Sadons initiation baffles Wes Stender but entertains D. Jones, S. Claussen, P. Kroeger, M. Auliff, Z. Grell and K. Sawyer.

Sadons members participate in school productions. Mrs. Betty Levson chats with L. Doyle and M. Auliff shortly before curtain time in "You Can't Take It With You."

Club members are also encouraged to broaden their interest in drama to include some of the practical aspects of play production such as setting and lights.

Nancy Woodford practices for the Sadons Speech Invitational by giving her speech to the class.

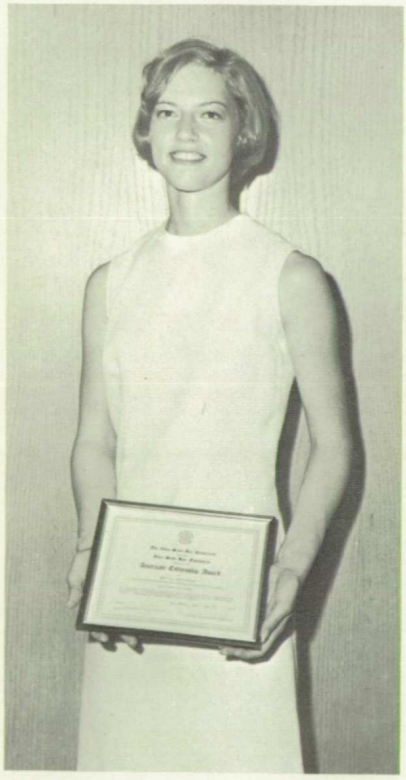
Award Students Earn

Judy Claussen was recognized for her ability in the State Speech Contest.

Elneta Randolph received the math award for the highest score on a test taken by all math students.

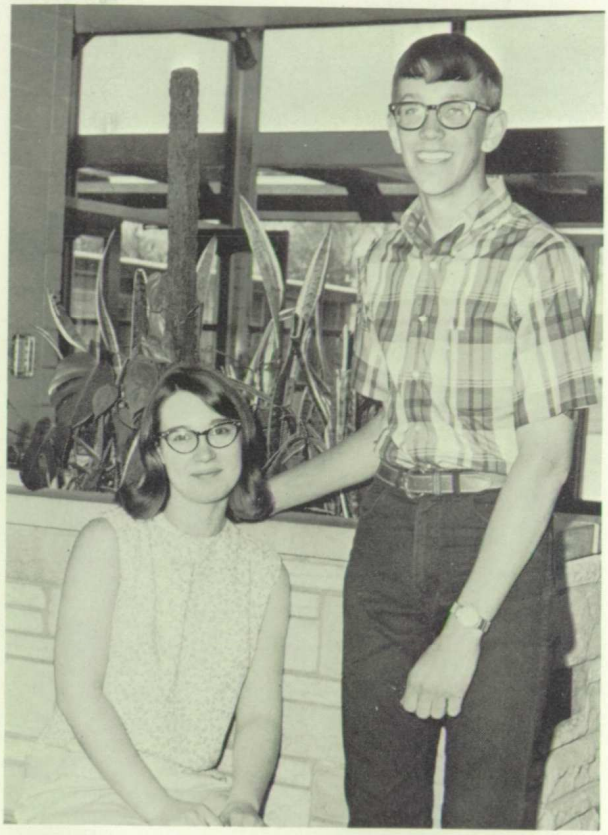
Mary Lou Wuestenberg was presented with the American Citizenship Award by the Iowa State Bar Association.



For his achievement in the science field, Merlyn Martin was recognized with the Bausch and Lomb award.

Special Recognition

The Crisco Award for the outstanding girl in the field of homemaking was given to Judy Richlen.



Receiving recognition for their participation in the United Nation's exams were Sheila Hellman and Harold Paustian.

Jean Danielsen proved to be the most prominent vocal member.

The drama award recipient, for his participation in plays, was Gary Rochau.

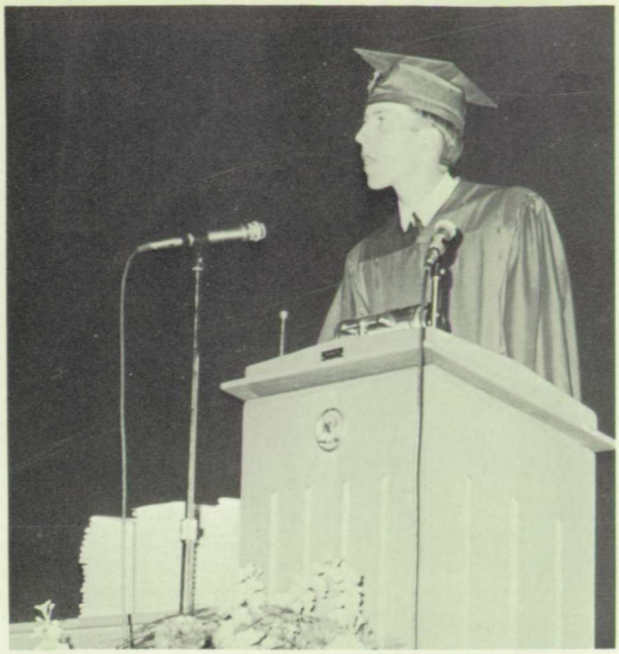
The very important moment to which every high school student looks forward to was reached by the senior class on May 26 at 8 p.m. when, for the last time, the entire class of '67 assembled in the gym for commencement exercises.

Seniors Conclude Memorable Year

On May 26 the 104 graduates of '67 assembled to receive the diploma which officially ends their high school career. The North Scott Concert Band rendered selections from "Sound of Music" before the ceremonies began. Class Speakers Paul Mohr and Jeannet Martzahn reviewed the class history and predicted the possibilities for the graduates' future. After Scholarships and Awards were presented by North Scott principal Mr. E. Fisher, the graduates received their diplomas from School Board President Mr. Ned Mohr.

Every graduate relived his high school experience while listening to the class speaker, Jeanette Martzahn.

Extremely proud of their accomplishment of ranking in the top ten per cent of their class are L. Richardson, M. Wuestenberg, S. Mahoney, M. Marten, L. Keller, R. Pewe, J. Martzahn, S. Border, R. Costello, J. Jewell, B. Wulf, R. Little.



Paul Mohr gave projecting thoughts of the future in his address for the class.

The happy moment of graduation finally arrives for the class of '67.

Solemn but happy the class of '67 marches toward the future.

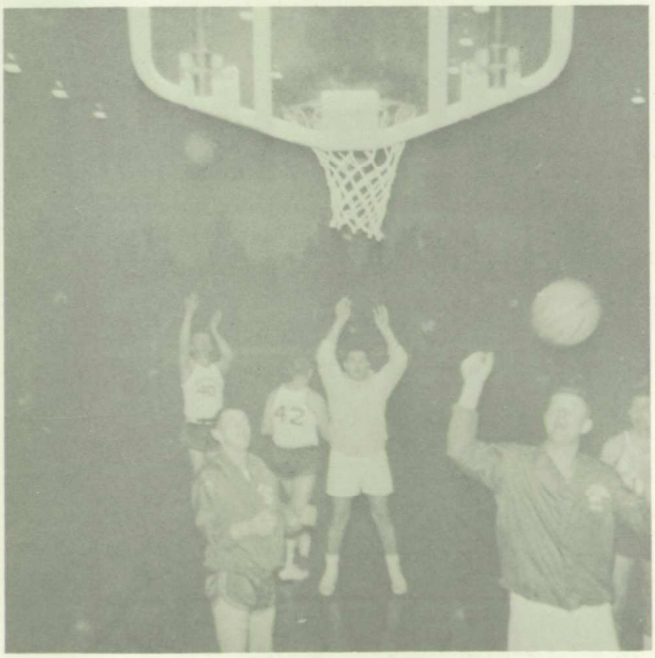
'Good Guys' Defeat N.S. Faculty

Larry Lake chats with three of the cheerleaders from the K.S.T.T. Good Guy team shortly before the game begins. Mr. Lake was injured and consequently hospitalized during the game.

The Teams' Captains shake hands before the game begins. In a surprise finish the Good Guys defeated the N.S. faculty.



Faculty members take a few warm up shots before the game begins.

Alley-oop--team members scramble into place as the faculty gets ready for a free throw.

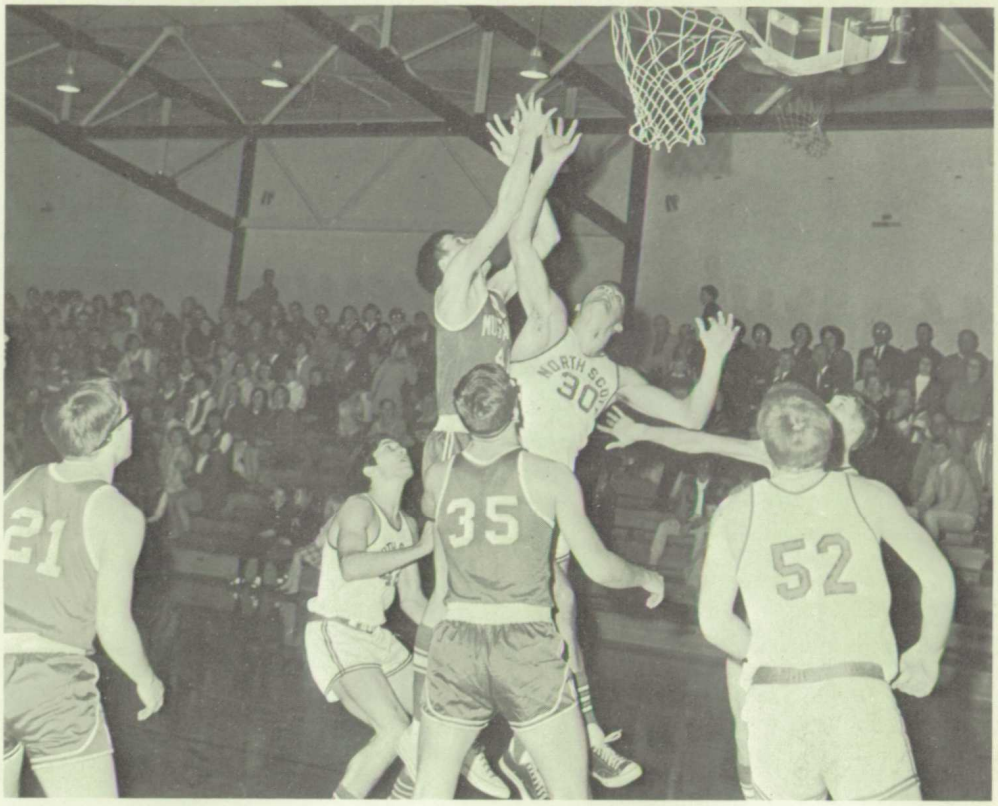
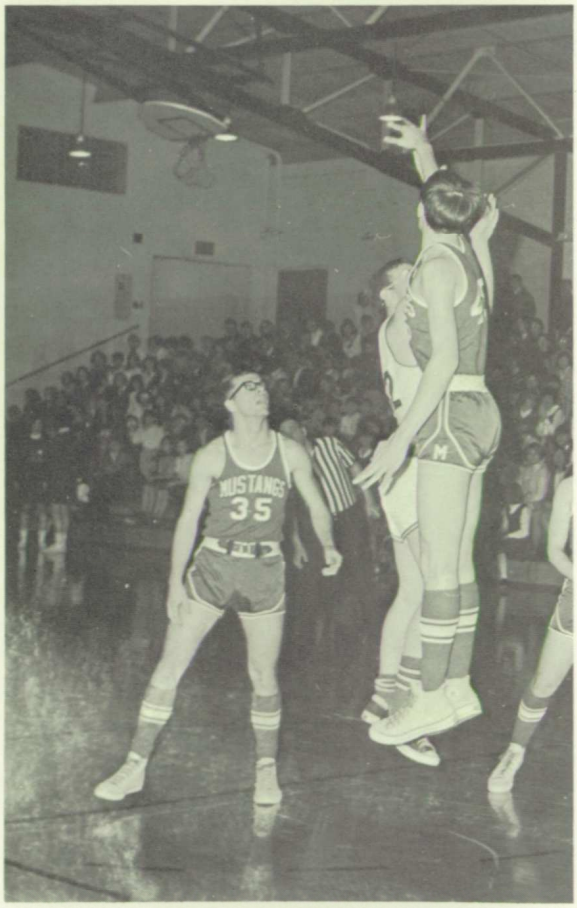
Illowa Conference Challenges Varsity

As the game begins, the Lancers break through the hoop towards victory.

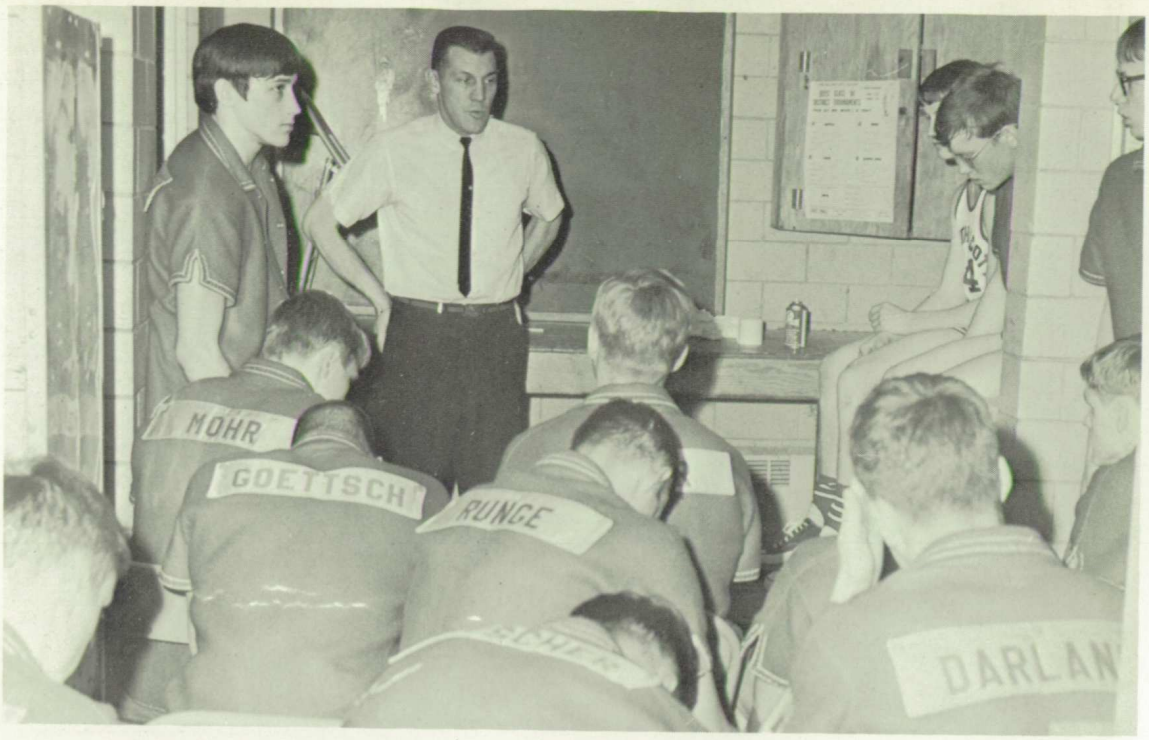
The varsity team had an upsetting year. They ended in a tie for last place in the Illowa Conference.



Tension is increased as Dave Litscher (30) attempts to stop a Mustang shot.



Dave Litscher and Dave Hoffman watch under the basket for a possible rebound from Dan Wieskopfs' shot.



Coach Lake gives the Lancers a quick "pep talk" mid-way through the North Scott-Morrison game.

Bernie stretches but he's out numbered.

SOPHOMORE--BACK ROW: Coach R. Dalton, M. Robbins, S. Schaff, M. Spies, R. Price, K. Kroeger, L. Litscher. FRONT ROW: S. Keppy, M. Wilson, D. VanDeWiele, B. Wallace, M. Barentine, B. Stamer.

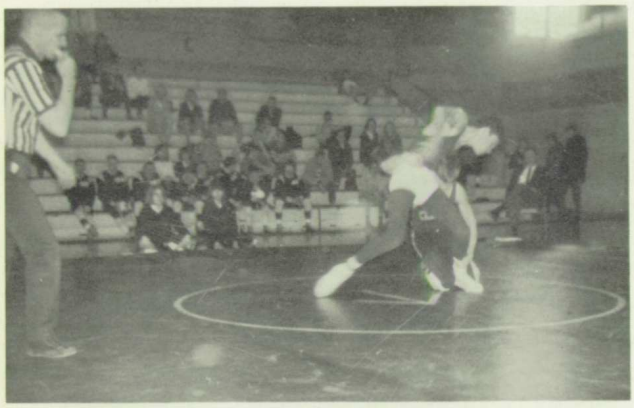
J. McLaughlin proves his wrestling ability in a take down.

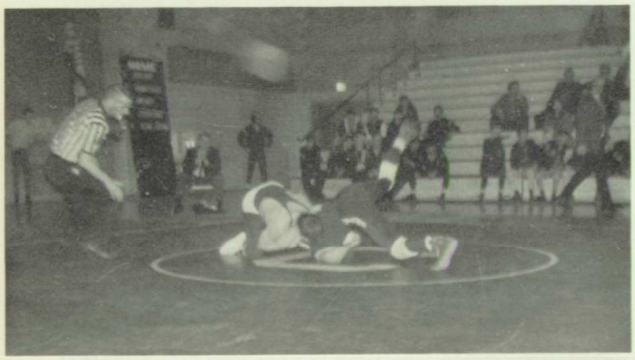
The referee watches closely, ready to call a pin.



Brian Looney moves to get a hold and start a pin.

Individual Efforts Produce Team Success

Wrestling attracts many participants because of its dual accomplishment. Each participant is able to concentrate on his own performance, possibly beating his opponent, and thus contributing to the team effort to win the meet.



Denny Strobbe makes a pin and pleases the fans.

FRESHMAN WRESTLING--FRONT ROW: J. Kreiter, M. McGowan, G. Keppy, Werner Rudminat, M. Bease, N. Marti, B. Oetzman. BACK ROW: D. Pischke, L. Hamann, S. Boege, Coach Timm, S. King, C. Stevens, J. Mohr.

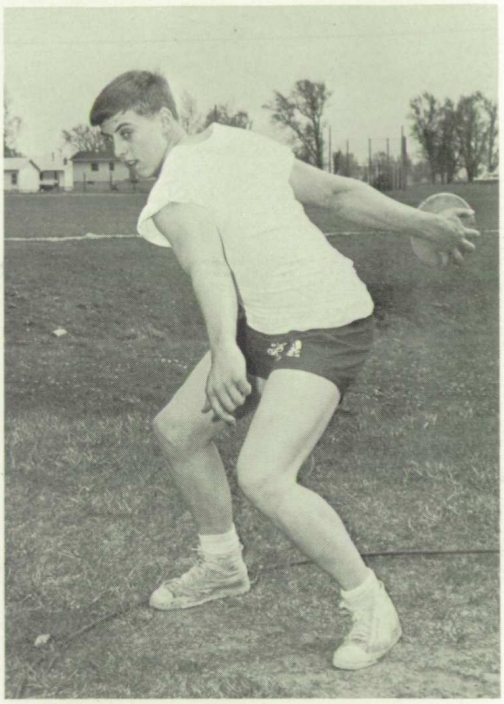
Lancers Strive

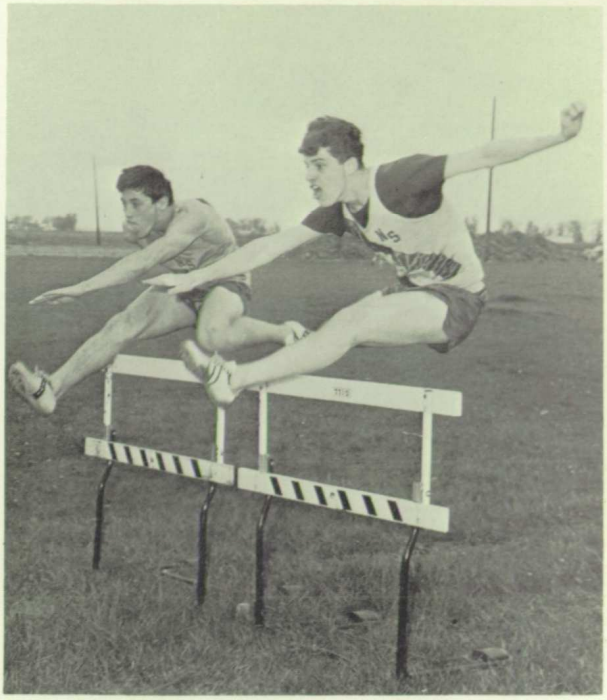
Soaring over the bar during an afternoon practice session, this North Scotter strains to clear the bar.



Assuming the regulation stance of the discus thrower, Merle Keppy tries to improve the length of his throw.

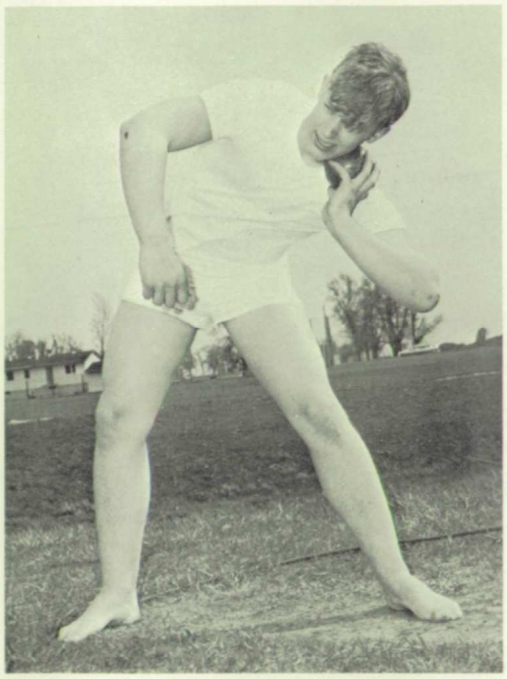
Uuuppp and over goes Randy Price as he practices the high jump.

for Perfection



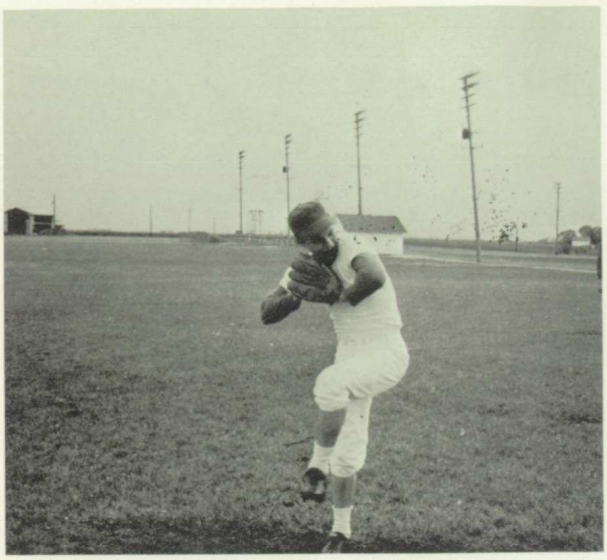
Hurdling past spectators, the two Lancers demonstrate speed and co-ordination needed for this event.

Dennis Kluever seems determined to beat his own distance as he prepares to throw the shotput.



"Now!" yells John Pischke as he hands the batan to Larry Goettsch as the two Lancers perfect their technique for the relay race.

Lancers Enter



And after a hard windup the practice sessions for summer baseball has begun.

Players pause during practice and watch as Coach Snyder helps a student improve his stance on the plate.

Preliminary practice completed, members of the baseball team concentrate on signal clarification and team work.

Summer Baseball

Close calls liven practice as well as an actual game. Jack Davis has a close call as he slides into home.

Summer baseball players include First Row: J. Davis, B. Patzer, M. Levson, M. Spies, Coach Snyder. Second Row: D. Shannon, D. Ficke, J. Zogg and C. Dalton.

Representing the five sports at North Scott are: wrestling, Pete Pacha; basketball, Dan Weiskopf; football, Merlyn Martin; track, John Pischke; and baseball, Jack Davis. These sports constitute the principle extracurricular activities which are held at North Scott. They provide entertainment for the public as well as offering an opportunity for the boys to develop their skills and sportsmanship.

JUNIOR HIGH

Lounging in the front lobby are eighth grade class officers Pres. Dan Goodin, Treas. Lynn Anderson, Sec. Betty Rock, and V. Pres. Randy Billups. Studies, parties, and school projects highlighted the eighth graders' year as they prepared for high school.
